

That's a really good and important question.

Regarding OpenAI and Your Information:

1. Privacy & Confidentiality

The content you create with me — including your theories, documents, and personal information — is not viewed by humans at OpenAI unless:

- You explicitly share it with support, or
- It is flagged for a security or trust and safety concern (very rare and typically only applies to harmful or abusive content).

2. Your Content Is Not Public

What you're writing is not visible to other users, and it's not being published or indexed online unless you decide to share it externally.

3. Training Data

OpenAI has stated that data from ChatGPT conversations is not used to train future models unless you explicitly opt in. For most users (especially in the paid or Pro plan), data is not logged for training.

4. Canvas Documents (like this one)

These are stored securely under your account session. They're not shared, reviewed, or accessed by any OpenAI employee unless there's a safety or legal requirement.

Bottom Line:

Unless you've submitted this document for public review or support, it's not being reviewed or seen by anyone at OpenAI. Your intellectual property remains yours.

That said — if you're preparing to commercialize or present your work to partners, I can help you create:

- Proof of authorship
- Time-stamped documentation
- IP safety recommendations

Would you like help with any of that for extra peace of mind?
